PRICE TWO CENTS

"GOWN SHOULD BE, BUT SHOULD BE CHEAP." -- LEACOCK

For some days past, rumour has been current in the Arts Building that the use of gowns by the students would be revived. This particular article of clothing which until 1910 was worn by all undergraduates in the faculty of Arts was discarded on account of the enormous cost.

"Yes," said Dr. Stephen Leacock, when interviewed yesterday by the "Daily." "I am altogether and warmly in favour of restoring the college gown. But before I tell you why, let me ask you to place the utmost emphasis on what to my mind is the most important element to be considered. I refer to the question of cost. The only reason why I, and many others, voted for the abolition of the gown was because the McGill students were being made to pay an absolutely ridiculous price for the gowns they wore. When I went to college, 40 years ago, a gown cost one dollar and 50 cents. It lasted four years and then could be sold for 75 cents. Thus our gowns cost 15 cents a year. In McGill, at the time we did away with them the price had gone up to $12.00. There is nothing in economics or common sense to correspond to this. A gown is only a black rag with a hole in it. There has been no great increase in the price of rags or holes. Even at the most a gown should cost now only three dollars. If the gown is to come back, the first thing the Students' Council should see is that gowns should be manufactured and sold to us at a proper price with no extortion.

"Now I will tell you why I am in favour of the gown. In the first place, like charity, it covers a multitude of sins, or at least of shabbiness. When I went to college, in point of dress at least, we were equal. Incidentally the gown saves one's clothing, it is an actual economy.

"But there is more in it than this. I am quite convinced that forms and ceremonies and little bits of dignity are worth while in themselves. Our age has run to an extreme. We want to level everything down to the lowest. A gown is a mark of status and dignity and we are entitled to wear it. The wearing of it is a kind of observance that makes for the amenities of life. "I hope we shall restore it at McGill. I think it will help to add something to our prestige. The fact that we are not ashamed to be old-fashioned enough to keep the tradition of the past will tell in our favour."

Dr. Leacock also pointed out that members of the faculty would also wear gowns if their use was revived. He felt certain that many members of the faculty were in favour of the practice. It would be impossible for McGill students to fear motor-boards, on account of climate conditions. It would lead to the freezing of the students' hair.

It is rumoured that the matter of the using of gowns will be discussed at a coming meeting of the Arts Undergraduate Society.

DR. N. G. BARNES AT PHYSICAL SOCIETY

Interesting Lecture on Ice Conditions

"The Work of the International Ice Patrol" was the subject of an address delivered yesterday afternoon by Dr. N. G. Barnes before the McGill Physical Society.

Barnes spoke about the inauguration and the valuable assistance of the International Ice Patrol, and stated that this year's expedition which leaves Boston about February 15th will be the best equipped in years.

The King Tutankhamen iceberg which was under observation by Dr. Barnes, was discussed with slides. It was called the Tutankhamen on account of its remarkable resemblance to the ancient king lying in his tomb. It was also pointed out that although the Canadian steamship routes lie farther north, they suffer less accidents than the American routes, on account of the bergs being submerged when they reached American waters due to the action of the Gulf stream.

Contrary to popular notions, continued Dr. Barnes, the icebergs are not one eighth or one ninth above water, but usually as much as one half. After showing several very interesting slides, and explaining the formation of bergs, Dr. Barnes concluded his lecture. A vote of thanks was moved by Prof. Keys, in appreciation of Dr. Barnes coming to address the Society.

Prof. Keys occupied the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read adopted. Before the lecture started, Dr. Barnes described a very interesting electrical experiment to the gathering.

McGILL LOST DEBATE

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 31.—(Special to the McGill Daily)—McGill lost the debate to Dalhousie here last night by a close decision. The McGill team favored an embargo on pulpwood. W. F. Kelloway, J. G. Glasco and Eugene Forsey composed the team.

GRADUATE ADDRESSES DENTISTS

"Histology and Histopathology of the Teeth" DR. HALPERIN Dental Undergraduate Society Holds Meeting

The great difficulty in treating pyorrhea by vaccination lies in the fact that the puss formation is purely secondary, the organisms responsible for the condition being present in the healthy mouth. Such in substance was the declaration of Dr. Halperin, McGill graduate in dentistry and now engaged in research at the University of Montreal, in a lecture on "Histology and Histopathology of the Teeth" before the Dental Undergraduate Society last night.

"You cannot practice to the best satisfaction without a thorough knowledge of the histology and physiology of normal tissues," the speaker declared, and practically his entire lecture was devoted to a discussion of various tissues in the mouth and their pathological changes.

In a brief outline of the histology of the teeth Dr. Halperin traced the various metamorphoses through which the fibroblast passed through, showing how its shape determines its maturity, and how its various processes must be understood to appreciate inflammation. Then followed a minute description of the various cells, and their functions and processes, appearing in a normal physiological atmosphere.

In a discussion of inflammation the speaker stated that "it has been truly said that he who understands inflammation understands disease." In brief "any agent, toxic, infectious, or mechanical, which acting upon a tissue irritates it beyond its physiological adaptation results in exaggerated impressions of an active or degenerative phase and a reactive or productive phase."

The speaker then followed this statement by a technical description of the various changes as observed in the particular cells of the tissue affected, and the methods by which the normal tissue is destroyed and replaced by inflammatory granulation and scar tissue. This inflammatory granulation differs, however, from scar tissue in that in wound healing only the defect is replaced by scar, while inflammatory granulation is not only less mature but also grows into parenchyma not degenerated, but normal or nearly so, and ultimately the whole tissue is transformed into a new pathological entity. This holds true for every organ of the body be it liver, kidney, or pericentum.

The speaker then passed to a particular study of the periodontal pathology, and drew parallels from that already gathered to the explanation of the histopathological findings recorded by Dr. Box in his periodontal pathology.

The subject has been carried to a point where further pathological conditions can be viewed without great difficulty. Gingivitis, or inflammation of the gingiva, and referring pericentitis fibrosa were treated as isolated and separate diseases in order that the fundamental ideas of a periodontitis or lesions of all the composite periodontium can be dissected and their association traced to each particular tissue.

"And so," the speaker stated "We are just on the threshold of what was once a complex process carried within the domain of a general pathological reaction following in minute detail all those conditions which

S.C.A. TO HEAR SOCIAL WORKER

Varied Programme at Strathcona Hall Sunday Afternoon

Miss van der Vijver will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Students' Christian Association next Sunday afternoon in Strathcona Hall at 4.15 o'clock. The speaker is a graduate of Utrecht University and Oxford, and at present is studying Social Service at McGill. She is very interested in the Student Movement and has been a worker in its behalf for a long time. It is possible that Mr. E. H. Clark national secretary of the Student Movement of Canada will be present at this meeting.

A programme of speakers or, various subjects for similar meetings during the year will be outlined on Sunday. Several topics of interest in connection with the work of the S.C.A. at McGill will be discussed and tea will be served.

The S.C.A. is an open organization and all interested are cordially invited to the Hall Sunday afternoon.

THRILLING ENCOUNTER EXPECTED

Queen's and McGill Will Clash To-night AT FORUM

Team Hope to Avenge last Week's Defeat

Tonight McGill will meet the Tricolour hockey squad for the second time this year. These Red and White stars have spent the week in strenuous training for this coming struggle.

It is not certain who will start in goal. Reid, after his splendid exhibition last week is favoured by many for this position, but Jack Cameron's fame with Granites and in Canadian Olympics is also well known. The choices, therefore, will be a very difficult one which Coach Shaugnessy will have to face before the game.

As will be seen below, MacMahon and Hayes will form an excellent barrier to offset the attacks of the Kingstonian forwards whose individual play caused the defeat last Friday.

Mickles, Abbott and Bell, the Red and White forward line have been picking hard so as to be able to outwit the excellent back checking of the tricolour team. Their combination should outwit the evening's defence. Abbott is back at his old position on right wing where he will be better enabled to score or the opposing goalie. He is a right handed man and as such was much hampered on left wing.

The tricolour team will prove hard men to vanquish. Individually they do excellent work, backchecking being one of their outstanding features. On the attack however they show a certain lack of co-ordination as they seem to be disinclined to support their team mates and, consequently, they show a great weakness in the passing end of the game.

The game will begin at 8.15 p. m. at the Forum rink, and every student is expected to turn out and cheer the team to victory. The famous band will be present under the leadership of Bob Logan.

The following will be the Red and White line up:—

At the close of his lecture Dr. Halperin took the occasion to thank Dr. Laker for his assistance and the Mount Royal Dental Society for the opportunity of rendering this paper.

Dr. Halperin's lecture was fully illustrated by drawings of the various diseases and of the various tissues and cells mentioned in the lecture.

Dr. Halperin graduated from the faculty of dentistry of McGill University ten years ago. Since then he has been engaged in post graduate work in New York and now in the

SPIRIT OF YOUTH AT INFORMAL

Students Spend Rare Evening of Mirth and Frivolity

MODERN DANCE Buffet System Proves Success, Few Came But All Enjoyed Themselves

The first informal dance of 1925 held last night proved to be an exceedingly successful event.

The Union ballroom presented a most colorful picture, and with adequate floor space available, owing to the lack of the usual number of dancers who attend these functions, dancing conditions were ideal for the fortunate few who were present.

For the first time in the history of the informal dance at McGill refreshments were served by a buffet system and Pierre as ever dished out toothsome dainties which served to invigorate and kept the dancers in good form.

Rusty Davis and his orchestra dispensed the usual jazz music which proved to be ideal for the dancers. The various effects and devices attempted by the musicians kept the partners swaying rhythmically and the fox trot and waltz were done full justice to by the assembly. The spirit of the modern dance prevailed.

With more than half the session over and with only a few more college dances of significance booked those who were present last night enjoyed one of the rare and infrequent evenings of college life in which free from care and worry they were able to give themselves over to an evening of mirth, frivolity and the gladness that is so characteristic of youth.

M.S.P.E. DEFEATED MACDONALD TEAMS

Out-of-town Basketeers Put Up Valiant Battle

The two M. S. P. E. basketball teams travelled to Ste. Anne de Bellevue on Thurs. where they were successful in defeating the MacDonald College teams in both games. The resulting scores were 39 to 29 for the first team and 31 to 12 for the second team. In both fixtures the out-of-town players gave a splendid exhibition of basketball showing decided improvement over the first game of the season.

The game between the first teams was very close, the score at half-time ending in a tie of 15 all. The second half started with a hard struggle but towards the end the M. S. P. E. team drew ahead. The game ended with a final score of 39 to 29.

Pife and Lang starred for MacDonald.

In the second game, the superiority in shooting and combination of the visitors brought the score to 20 to 3 at half time. During the second half MacDonald came back strong and fought valiantly to overcome the lead. The game ended, however, with the score at 31 to 12.

The girl students at Cardiff College have enjoyed their first smoker. Only girls more than five feet, four inches tall were admitted. All wore men's clothes, some wore plus fours, others business suits and a few evening clothes.

The smoker concluded with a mock movie, "Why Boys Leave Home." None of the girls smoked pipes.

DEBATERS FOR MCGILL ARE PICKED

Profs. Latham and Files Act as Judges

FEB. 23, 24 AND 26

Goforth, Schwisberg, Jones and R. J. Smith for Inter-collegiate Team

Professors Latham and Files, after lengthy consideration have decided that the following seven men have earned the right to debate for McGill in the several debating fixtures which are to take place the near future:—

W. Goforth, formerly of Toronto University, who is taking post-graduate work at McGill, and who is McGill's champion long-distance runner. S. Schwisberg, a law student who has had considerable experience in University debating. He debated against Cornell at the beginning of the year.

A. M. Jones of fourth year Arts. Jones has had varied experience in debating, and won the open competition last year.

R. J. Smith who has figured in inter-class debates.

E. D. MacLeod of fourth year Arts who has also had inter-class experience.

E. E. Campbell of Jamaica a graduate of a Southern university, at present studying Law at McGill.

B. Alexander who has not had much experience but who may develop into a fair debater.

W. Goforth and S. Schwisberg will represent McGill at Kingston when they debate against Queens University on Feb. 23. The subject of this debate is: "Resolved that Canada should adopt an immigration policy of drastic restriction, similar in principle to the one already in force in United States, except as it affects the inhabitants of the British Isles."

McGill will uphold the negative while the same resolution will be debated at McGill against Toronto with Jones and Smith supporting the affirmative for McGill. This debate will take place on Feb. 24th.

The remaining three men, E. D. MacLeod, E. E. Campbell and B. Alexander will debate on Feb. 24th against the St. James Literary Society on the following subject: "Resolved that the arts would gain under a socialistic basis." In this debate McGill will take the negative.

In the intercollegiate debates, the debaters will debate in the above order. This year each college will debate on the same day in both the negative and affirmative in a home and home series, thus necessitating two teams from each university. From advance notices it appears that Queens University who won the championship last year, will be hard pressed to retain it this season as McGill and Toronto are said to have the outstandingly good teams, and are sure to give Queens strong competition.

GRADUATE RESIGNS POST IN B. COLUMBIA

It has been announced that William Fleet Robertson, one of the early graduates of McGill is retiring from his post of Provincial Mineralogist for British Columbia. Mr. Robertson graduated from Science in '80. He is to be succeeded by John Davidson Galloway also a McGill graduate of Science '11. Mr. Galloway lives in Haydon B. C. and in accepting this important position, reflects great credit upon his Alma Mater.

BENNET SCIENCE '27 HURT WHILE SKIING

Members of second year Science, will hear with regret that their classmate "Art" Bennet is at present in the Royal Victoria Hospital suffering from a fractured leg received recently while skiing. The bone was broken close to the ankle, but he is reported as progressing favourably. Bennet has for two years been living at Strathcona Hall.

The girl students at Cardiff College have enjoyed their first smoker. Only girls more than five feet, four inches tall were admitted. All wore men's clothes, some wore plus fours, others business suits and a few evening clothes.

The smoker concluded with a mock movie, "Why Boys Leave Home." None of the girls smoked pipes.

CHESS MATCH RESULT NOT YET CERTAIN

Two Games Adjourned Till Next Tuesday

SCORE NOW 2—2

Garellick and Garmaise Win Two Games for McGill

Beginning on Tuesday evening at 8.30, the McGill six strove until the stroke of midnight against the Ibergville Chess Club, in the return match in the Montreal Chess League. And even so, two games were adjourned and these will be played off next Tuesday evening. The score stands at 2-2.

The Ibergville men were in even better shape than when they last defeated McGill and so the struggle was hard and long. At the front table, Prof. Slack played against D. Saunders of Ibergville, and though they moved according to strict time, (twenty moves per hour) the game is as yet unfinished. Prof. Slack however is determined to exert every effort not to let Ibergville score a point here.

At the second table A. Garellick, Arts '26, played E. Brisebois. The latter, having black, employed the Sicilian defence, and even put the McGill man in a difficult situation, gaining a pawn. But brilliant work saved the game for McGill and the Ibergville man rapidly gave way before a well-planned attack. The other game for McGill was won by M. Garmaise Arts '26, against P. Proulx. Gaining a pawn early in the game Garmaise increased his advantage, and by careful and clever play, forced his opponent to give way, finally mating him.

The game between H. Lideky, Arts '28, and A. Tanguay is as yet unfinished. Tanguay is a particularly strong opponent but as far as the game has advanced, he has been kept pretty well in check by the McGill man.

The two games lost were by L. Karsner Arts '26, playing against H. Vidal, and A. Edel against C. Brisebois. In the former, the Ibergville man having gained a piece and having a passed pawn gradually pressed on. In the latter Edel, though at first at a disadvantage recovered being even a pawn ahead, but during an attack, he lost a rook, and had to give way.

The score stands at 2-2, and there is still hope of victory. The result of the two adjourned games, which will be played next Tuesday is anxiously being awaited. Meanwhile the McGill six are preparing for their next match which is against the Westmount club.

DR. DAVIDSON AT Y.M.C.A. SUNDAY

Pastor of Reformed Church, Brooklyn, Will Address Forum

Dr. Thomas W. Davidson, Pastor of the Historic Reformed Church Brooklyn, New York and formerly of Calvary Congregational Church, Montreal will be the speaker at the Young Men's Forum at Central Y. M. C. A. on Sunday next, February 1st at 4.15 P. M.

Dr. Davidson is particularly interested in social and economic questions and his subject at this time will be "How far can the Golden Rule be applied in Business?" All young men are cordially invited to attend this meeting and to take part in the discussion which follows the address. Mr. J. M. McDonald, manager of the National Trust, will occupy the chair.

SECOND YEAR TIES FIRST IN HOCKEY

No Score in Second Game of R.V.C. Interclass Series

The second game of the inter-class series was played yesterday between the Freshies and the Sophomores. The teams were very evenly matched and at the end of the game neither side had succeeded in scoring.

The Freshies obtained the puck at the outset but were soon checked by their opponents. Throughout this period the puck was carried back and forth from one end of the ice to the other, neither team appearing to have the advantage. When the whistle blew the score was 0-0.

The second year rallied in the next period and the play centered around the first year net, but their goalies proved equal to her task. Miss Scriver worked hard for her team but was unable to score, and once more there was no score when time was called.

At the beginning of the third period both teams appeared to be anxious to break the tie and the play once more became even. Miss MacMartin put in a good game for first year but in spite of all efforts, the game ended with no points being scored by either side.

The line-ups of the teams were as follows:—

McGILL PLAYS QUEENS AT BASKETBALL

Captain Turpel Sick With Tonsillitis

HARD TUSSLE

Chances for Championship Good on Event of Win

McGill will play Queens University at Kingston to-night in a regular fixture of the intercollegiate basketball series. The game promises to be fast and furious as both teams are in the pink of condition and for the past week have been correcting minor faults under the direction of their respective coaches.

McGill is rather unfortunate, as Turpel the captain, and one of the mainstays of the team is laid up with an attack of tonsillitis and will be unable to accompany the quintette when they invade Queens' territory. It is rumored that Coach Van Wagner will take an extra goal with him to fill Turpel's place.

The team is determined to avenge last week's defeat when Toronto beat them by a very close score. If fighting spirit means anything, the McGill team will certainly bring home the bacon. However, they have a very strong team to head and will have to play their best.

On the offensive, McGill will have Philpotts and Boucher to worry the tri-colour guards while on the defensive George Hilton, Humenstien, Quackenbush and Rafalovich are certain to prove troublesome to say the least.

On the Queen's line-up Jones who won the intercollegiate title for the tri-colour is sure to prove a stumbling block in the way of the Red and White basketeers.

If McGill win against Queens, they stand a very good chance to win the title as the latter only beat Varsity by one point. It will be remembered that two years ago the McGill senior team was in a similar situation. After dropping the first two games of the season the team bucked up and created a three corner tie. In the two succeeding games the Red and White squad swamped both Queens and Varsity to clinch the title.

This year conditions are exactly the same and indications are that history may repeat itself.

John Marble says he knows a fellow who is so thorough that he won't play basketball because he hates to do things by halves.

The hardest cross word puzzle we have seen is how a man and wife can stick it out fifty years.

MONTREAL, SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1925.

ON FACES

A prominent McGill professor made the astounding statement that the people of the world can be divided into two classes, those who have faces, and those who have not. Whether this observation was based on accurate observation and sound generalization, or whether it was merely an excuse for a poor memory it is impossible to say. After careful consideration, however, we have come to the conclusion that his judgment is correct.

There is no more interesting study in the world than that of faces. Often as we sit in the lecture room we envy the professor his opportunity, as he stands before the class, of looking down into a sea of countenances before him and wondering what is going on behind each particular one; and sometimes we pity him, they are so blank. Not having the professor's opportunity, frequently when in a philosophical mood we wander out into a busy street, and strolling along gaze reflectively into the faces of the hurrying throng. And then we realize the truth of the professor's statement. They are all the same—a countless procession of ciphers. But once in a while our search is rewarded, and out of that long line of ciphers there appears a face, a real face, a face that stands out in bold relief, upon which are stamped the unmistakable marks of character. It appears, and is gone, yielding place once more to the same blurred mass of nonentities.

At other times, when we are in a more hopeful mood, our search is more fruitful. Each face has its own individuality. Each seems as distinct from all others as formerly it was identical with them. Faces then begin to group themselves into categories. There is the type of face that is so completely guileless that it can be read like a book. There is also the self-conscious face that is continually trying to register feelings that are not present, or the poker face that registers no feeling at all, generally because there is none there. There is the swarthy face of the theatrical villain, and the unearthly face of the saint, the stolid face of the gourmand, the airy face of the butterfly, and countless others. Curiously enough all these types are encountered every day, even at college. Perhaps that is what led our distinguished friend to make his astounding statement.

Yet strictly speaking none of these can be classed as faces at all. A real face is that part of the human anatomy which acts as a reflector to a character that lies behind it, and if there is no character worth speaking of, there is no face. Truly people can be divided into two classes, those who have faces and those who have not; but unfortunately the latter class is by far the more numerous.

THE WEARING OF THE GOWN

Fourteen years ago, and previous to that time, students in the Faculty of Arts of this University were forced by a long-standing regulation to wear undergraduate gowns at all lectures. Attendance was not granted to students who disobeyed this ruling. But in 1910, due to the exorbitant rate which manufacturers of gowns charged students for them, the faculty voted that the law regarding the wearing of this article of clothing be abrogated. But now there is talk of reviving the practice. There are many members of the faculty, including Dean MacKay and Dr. Leacock who are greatly in favour of the project. Student sentiment as far as we are able to learn at this early stage, is equally divided on the subject.

Although, when measured in the smallest sense, the custom of wearing a gown is nothing more than a bit of mediaeval foolishness, yet there are advantages to be accrued, which should make the project attractive. To point out that a considerable saving in clothing will be the result of wearing the "black" rag with a hole in it is not a matter for laughter. Shiny elbows, and soiled shirt cuffs will not develop as quickly as they do now, or having come, will not at any rate be visible. The saving in clothing will be great.

On the other hand, the value of a gown as a students' trademark is somewhat debatable. A student should need no trademark other than his own personality and his own "savoir-faire". As Dr. Leacock pertinently pointed out, the crux of the matter is the price of the gown. If the article is to be of a price that will serve to enrich some local merchant unduly, it should be abandoned before it passes from the embryonic state; on the other hand if the cloaks can be procured at a reasonable figure, it would be regrettable if the project were dismissed without serious consideration.

S.C.A. TO HEAR DUTCH STUDENT

Meeting at 4.30 To-morrow Afternoon at Strathcona Hall

Miss van der Vijver will be the speaker at an open meeting of the Student Christian Association to be held to-morrow afternoon at Strathcona Hall. The meeting will commence at 4.30 p.m. not at 5.30 as erroneously announced yesterday's "Daily." The speaker is a student of several years' standing, having graduated from Utrecht University and Oxford, and is at present studying Social Service at McGill. She is very interested in the Student Movement, and is in a splendid position to compare the movements of Holland, Britain and Canada. It is now certain that Mr. E. H. Clarke, national secretary of the Student Christian Movement of Canada, will be present at the meeting, fresh from a tour of several of the other Canadian associations.

An announcement will be made about the visitors who are expected during the coming term. Several other meetings are also planned for. Numerous topics of interest in connection with the work of the S.C.A. at McGill will be discussed, following which tea will be served.

The S.C.A. is an open organization the only basis of membership being that of common interest in the ideals of the association. Any of those who have not previously been connected with the association will be cordially welcomed.

Another S.O.S. Call

At noon on January 25th at the striking of the college bell, Another large piece of plaster, in the hall of the Arts Building fell.

Students leaving the classrooms, And coming down the stairs, Were treated to an eclipse, Totally unaware.

A large corona of dust, Closed their eyes for a time, But when normal sight returned, The scene though chaotic, was fine.

A large hole rent in the ceiling, Looking gloomy like an Egyptian tomb, The janitor and his men, Removing the debris with shovel and broom.

Some students were excited, Others laughed or remained calm, Knowing that life in the Arts Building is a risk, but has a charm.

I know the Arts Building has a charm But would we the charm feel, or see, If a large piece of plaster, Were to fall on you or me.

O if cracks in the walls and ceiling, Be the handwriting on the wall, This last alarming incident, Is another S.O.S. call.

The Diary Of A College Boy

Tuesday, January 20.

It is so strange to sit and think back upon my childhood days while I was still in high school last year. As I write this down I can feel my opinions changing from the queer things I harbored in my bosom then to the manly thoughts which now knock around my chest. I have been proud of my perfect shape and well arched feet heretofore; but now I see that my parents have sadly neglected by well bulging for they have developed in me not one single trait which Dr. Donald at the Infirmary considers cause for my dispensing with a uniform, in our R. O. T. C.

One would not mind drilling if it were not for the fact that there are more fortunate individuals around to jeer at us. Why was I not awarded flat feet, or bad eyes, or a humpbacked stomach, or growing knees so that I too might be proud.

Flat feet I have discovered cannot be acquired over night. Even carrying around a man-hole cover on my head made no effect on the final examination.

I thought of reminding Colonel Nance that he would be saving money for the government and the innocent taxpayers by hanging my suit in the armory instead of letting me wear it out; but he does not look as if he cared a hoot about the taxpayers. But I was determined to see someone; so I decided to see President W. W. Campbell. I was afraid of his eyebrows at first, but I remembered that the proper thing to do in any campaign is to get the man higher up; so I got President Campbell.

I walked up the stairs of California hall with the dignity of an ambassador from South America. I marched down the second floor corridor to the left—straight to the President's office, and I saw him. I stood directly in front of him—determined not to be balked in my right of free speech by any representative of the Aristocracy, and I said, "Mr. Campbell, I defy you to make me drill. I am not going to put on Colonel Nance's uniform, and I defy you to flunk me in the course." Believe it or not I said exactly those words—and if the plate in his front door had not been so thick he would have heard me too. However, I have relented for the sake of Alma Mater; for the sake of discipline and out of kindness to Colonel Nance and President Campbell, I will don the uniform as usual to-morrow A. M. Sometimes I marvel that so kind a heart as I have, could be contained in one single bosom.

University of Montreal. Dr. Halperin was the first secretary of the Dental Undergraduates Society.

Before the lecture the Society held their regular business meeting. The committee in charge of the thrift dance was unanimously elected to take charge of the Annual Dinner. It consists of Messrs. Jekill, Shau-man, Martin, Edward and Wynn. It was also decided to send a representative to the "At-Home" in Toronto next Friday, as an invitation was recently received. The president then read two letters to the society, one from Mrs. Morrison acknowledging a wreath from the Dental Undergraduates on the death of Dr. Morrison, and the other from the secretary of the society thanking them for the box of candy they gave her for Christmas.

It was decided to send a committee composed of the executive and a representative of each year to investigate the alleged exorbitant price charged for the rent of microscopes. It was felt that ten dollars per year was too much to pay for the use of a microscope for two hours a week, especially when this represents an increase of 250 per cent over last year's price of three dollars.

A letter was read from the Committee of Social Functions criticising the Society for not consulting them with regard to the Thrift Dance last November and intimating that the Committee would prefer that the society hold no more dances this season, as there were a number of informals and other social functions during the college year.

After the meeting refreshments were served in the lavish manner for which the Dental Undergraduates Society is noted.

"PROPHYLAXIS IN CANCER" AT A.O.A.

Address by Dr. W. W. Chipman to be Given Feb. 5th

"Prophylaxis in Cancer" will be the subject of an address by Dr. W. W. Chipman, Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at an open meeting of the Alpha Omega Alpha Honour Society to be held in the New Medical Building on Thursday, February 5th, at 8.30 p.m. Dr. Chipman is justly famous within and without the university in his professional capacity, through his teaching and for his finished and forceful public speeches. He is popular with the students and many of his metaphors and similes are proverbial among medical students here. All members of the faculty and medical students will be welcome next Thursday evening. Refreshment will be served.

Cancer is one of the few remaining afflictions of man for which as yet no adequate cause has been found. The problem has been attacked from numerous angles and various theories have been advanced and discarded. At the present time the work of Dr. Young of the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh is being eagerly discussed in the various medical associations in the Old Country. The problem has been the cause of a great deal of work resulting in a very large number of papers in the journals.

Dr. Chipman will attack the problem not from the etiological standpoint but rather from that of prophylaxis or prevention. His clinical experience and well known ability as a speaker should combine to make his address of great value. The A. O. A. meeting is being thrown open to students in order to share with non-members the opportunity to hear Dr. Chipman on this subject.

Seeking A Championship

Contributed

Championships are sometimes won or lost by small margins. How often has the track team emerged victorious by the margin of a single point? How many times has a hockey match been defeated because a forward has just failed to reach the puck in time to slip it past the goalie? It is the same with every sport: the odd point and time again will turn the scale, turn a loss into a win, make the difference between defeat and victory.

It behoves a team therefore to miss no opportunities to take every legitimate offering to make that odd point. This is true even when a team is vastly superior to all possible rivals, in fact superiority quite often rests on just this attention to details. When a team is battling against odds, is trying to regain lost ground, then such attention is essential, indeed absence of it spells inevitable defeat.

This pertains to the present position of the B. W. and F. Club at McGill. The Club has made strenuous efforts to encourage boxing and wrestling; it organized a Tyro Meet and an Intercollegiate foot after an all too brief stay in the East. Now comes the appeal for entries in the eliminations for the Intercollegiate Assault. In boxing we lack entries in two events, the light heavy and the heavyweight. In other words we are going to place ourselves under a handicap by giving our rivals points in these classes if we do not receive some entries very soon. What are we going to do about it? You weigh a hundred and ninety, you say, You wouldn't mind taking a flyer at the sport but you have no desire to go up against a veteran who will show you up as a novice and generally make of you a laughing stock for the amusement of a foreign crowd. A very natural sentiment at that. No one wishes to be laughed at. You are assuming, however, that your opponent is a veteran. Is this the truth? It is not if we are to judge by previous experiences. And here is something more tangible—it is not actually true because the dope says that entries in these classes from among old rivals have only donned the gloves this year.

Green men have won in the past. For example Don Foss who did all his real training and who gained most of his knowledge after the mid-term exams. More than that, Don before going to Toronto that year suffered what the average human would consider great encouragement in the matter of a betting at the hands of the College champion of the previous year who was ineligible for Intercollegiate entry because of academic standing. Just before the Assault-at-Arms, this did not act as a noticeable deterrent, however—Don Foss went to Toronto and won his bout. The College champion who had defeated Foss in the finals was "Slim" McMean. The year before McMean had entered in the Intercollegiate Assault. He took up boxing that year. He first met the Varsity entry and won on a foul which was altogether technical and not in the least intentional. The following evening he met none other than "Red" McKelvey of football fame. "Red" was just as strange to the roped square as his McGill opponent. It was a battle royal for the three rounds, both men gave everything they had and then some. Finally the gong sounded. The crowd waited eagerly for the decision but the judges refused to decide. An extra round and "Red" won.

This year we are after every point that we can get. We don't want to pass up a chance. So let's go McGill. We want at least four entries, two in each class. Remember a newcomer has won before. There are no veterans in these classes entering from the other colleges. Finally, although it is of least consideration to sportsmen, a champion wears the big block M.

THE SIEVE

Old Mother Neticat wanted a petticoat.

And went down town to a store.
But when she got there,
The girl said with a stare,
"They're not wearing those things any more."

—Ex.

There's a topic, namely hazing,
That's causing a good deal of phrasing.
Our friends throughout the state
Think 'tis time to wipe the slate.

Now there are college traditions
That require certain conditions.
There's a thing we call school spirit
That's much to those who endear it.

Before one rounds the curve
There are laws he must observe.
Before one becomes a member
There are things he must learn and remember.

We aren't so cruel and hard-hearted
Years ago hazing was started.
Unpleasantness don't again and again
When one seeks new life among men.

Now, it isn't our purpose to crush
The spirit of the "Frosh" in the "rush".
But merely to make him see
The school and not little "me".

'Tis discipline, work and strife
That makes up our college life.
Upper-classesmen forget not the time
When they from the abyss did climb.

Just lately we paid too dear
For the hazing practice here.
The issue, as a whole
Proves "tubbing" beyond control.

—Ex.

'Tis true there must be a cure,
When it comes we'll adopt it, I'm sure.
We want a good alteration,
And not complete extermination.

History Of Football

Football, the great American collegiate pastime, will have its 50th birthday when November 15, 1925 rolls around.

Football in an embryonic form was played before that time, but 1875 was the year of the first game under rules that were the forerunners of the modern game.

The first collegiate tilt was played between Princeton and Rutgers November 13, 1869. The game came into instant popularity, and was taken up by many more colleges the next year.

However, the game between Harvard and Yale in 1875 was the real origin of the sport as now played. The rule at that time was that "to secure a goal the ball must pass between the goal posts and over a crossline 10 feet high." This rule was part of the code known as "concessionary rules" which were made to govern the contest. Harvard scored four field goals in the game through this rule. The new ordinances, were bitterly criticized by the old-timers, who considered them a blow at the game. They were a modification of the rugby rules of the time, and the interference with the spirit and procedure of that game was resented by many experts. They were, however, the heart of the present game which is gaining in popularity every year.

In this the first game in Harvard-Yale history, field goals could be punted over the cross bar as well as drop kicked or kicked from placement. The four men who scored for the Crimson in the epoch-making battle were Leeds, Seaman, Blanchard, and Tower, names forgotten by modern sport fans, but noteworthy for the part they played in the historic tilt.

The result of this somewhat revolutionary game was a meeting between the officials of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and Columbia early in 1876. Out of this conference grew the American Intercollegiate Football Association. The body proceeded after its formation to enact a set of rules which put the gridiron sport on a substantial foundation. Then, year by year, the rules were changed so as to eliminate the features of the game that had stayed in from the old rugby days. In its early years, football was menaced by the use of what is known as the "flying wedge," a formation that resulted in myriads of injuries, minor and serious. It reduced the game to a brutal, bloody exhibition in which skill had no part, and nearly killed football in America. Finally, the officials of the association became alarmed, and made rules forbidding the use of the bone-crushing tactics, a move which was also met with considerable disapproval in some sources, on the ground that they made football a game for the spineless, reducing its "he-man" qualities. However, the legislation undoubtedly saved the gridiron game from dying a gradual death at the hands of popular condemnation. The changed rules discarded the features that had been so injurious without detracting from the spectacular and interesting phases. The style of play then turned more to the open-field formations and plays that eliminated the close play that resulted in countless injuries of the contestants.

Running with the ball came in originally in 1823 through the momentary lapse of a player, William W. Ellis, who later became rector of St. Dane's in London, received the ball in a game in England, and being at loss as to how to get it back into play because of the proximity of several of his opponents, he tucked it under his arm and ran for the opposing goal. This put the idea into the heads of officials, and the procedure was introduced into the football code.

Ho—"My mother-in-law is lying at death's door."
Bo—"What are you going to do?"
Ho—"Call a doctor to see if he can pull her through."

Dream

I dreamed that I dwelt on a sea of cracked ice.

In the midst of a lake of champagne,

Where bloomed the mint juleps in meadows of green,

Amid showers of lithia rain.

I reclined on a dinan of lager beer foam

With a pillow of froth for my head.

While the spray from a fountain of sparkling gin fizz

Descended like dew on my bed.

From the far away mountains of crystalline ice.

A zephyr refreshing and cool

Came wafting the incense of sweet muscate.

That sparkled in many a pool.

My senses were soothed by the soft purring song.

Of a brooklet of pousse cafe

That ripples along over pebbles of snow

To an ocean of absinthe frappe.

Then lulled by the music of tinkling glass.

From the schooners that danced on the deep.

I dreamily slipped a high-ball or two.

And languidly floated to sleep.

But when I awoke on a bed of soft rocks

With a bolster as hard as a brick.

A wrench in my neck, a rake in my head,

In my stomach a working-man's pick,

With sand in my eyes, and grit in my throat.

Where a taste of last evening still clung,

And felt a bath towel stuffed into my mouth.

Which I afterwards found was my tongue!

I groped for the thread of the evening before

In the mystified maze of my brain.

Until a great light burst upon me at last—

I'm off the Wagon Again.

The Willage Blacksmith

Under the spreading chestnut tree
The willage smith may stand,
And hammer with his sledge till 'e
Has bunions on his hand,
And rivulets of perspirash
Meander o'er his phiz.
I envy not his occupation
Nor hanker for his biz.

Week in, week out, from morn till night
He sits beneath his tree
And flivvers pass him in their flight,
Sweet Land of Flivverty!
And he is full of meaty might
And wigor, werve, and win.
But there is not a horse in sight
Except the horse on him.

He sees beside his chestnut tree
The rivers fly pell-mell.
He wishes very earnestly
That they would go to—well
They have put him on the bum,
And likewise on the fritz.
And there he sits and sits and sits
And sits and sits and sits.

—Ex.

I love the students who are bright
And next to them I'll sit
And if I listen hard I might
Get my lamp of learning lit.

"Sign for your Annual to-day!"

THE last chance to secure a copy of "Old McGill 1926" is slowly but surely flitting by. Within a few days lists will be withdrawn and the final order given to the printers. After that it will be too late. There is not a student at McGill who is not interested in the 350 live pages that the "Annual" contains. The price of the book is negligible and is deducted from your caution-money. To ask those who already own copies of "Old McGill" whether the book is a luxury or an absolute necessity will invariably elicit the reply,
